Name 19 Americans As Agents

By GUY RICHARDS

CPYRGHT

The names of 19 Americans accused of being agents of the Soviet Secret Police—12 of whom are in the State Dept. and four in the Central Intelligence Agency—have been turned over to Congressional investigators, the N. Y. Journal-American learned today.

The names were given to three Congressmen by Lt. Col. Michal Goleniewski, a defector from the KGB, during lengthy interviews in Goleniewski's Queens hideaway, one of the Congressmen told this newspaper.

The names of the three other Americans on Goleniewski's list of 19, are scientists who have access to classified material, the Russian defector said.

PRESS ACTION

The development came as the State Dept. reportedly acted hurriedly to discharge the Federal employees, and as a number of Congressional committees pressed for the opportunity of taking secret testimony from the former high-ranking KGB official.

According to the Congressman, Lt. Goleniewski secreted away in a Queens apartment by the CIA, told the three representatives of the Legislative branch that three of the KGB agents in the State Dept. are at the level of counselor in embassies, or counsel in Washington.

Seven others are in the code and communications sections of the State Department's far-flung posts.

The remaining two are in the Security branch.

Of the four KGB agents Lt.

Col. Goleniewski named in the CIA, two fall into the category of "definite and disciplined products of the other sides."

The other two are home-grown theoreticians, he said, who have allowed themselves to be pulled across the line by others.

The three scientists are all brilliant men whose humanitarian type of thinking and "One World" outlook have made them advocates of an "equal balance" of knowledge in scientific developments, the congressman quoted Lt. Col. Goleniewski.

They have served faithfully as secret message centers, relaying to the Reds whatever pertinent facts on new scientific developments they could gather, the Soviet defector said.

The former Soviet agent was interviewed in a secret CIA hideaway in Queens. It was apparently never intended by the CIA guardians that the list of 19 names should fall into the hands of anyone from Capitol Hill.

The fact that it did caused explosive headlines this week around the world.

It's somewhere in this galaxy, presumably, that the main culprits could be ferreted out for the big leak of CIA funds to the Communists.

On Monday, this newspaper disclosed, Lt. Col. Goleniewski reported, $1,200,000 of CIA funds in Vienna had been passed along to the Reds as follows: one third to the KGB, one third to the Italian Communists and one third to the American Communist Party.

SOLON BALKED

All this information was gained recently from the handsome and husky defector only because U. S. Rep. Michael A. Feighan, refused a CIA request to back a bill to give Lt. Col. Goleniewski American citizenship without knowing more about the case.

"I'd like to see the live body," he said.

Days later the CIA yielded. Accordingly Rep. Feighan and two Congressional aides visited the defector and his wife in a Queens apartment. It was where he was being sequestered by the CIA.

They were shocked at hear what he had to say—also to hear him confess that he was fearful to pass it along in detail to the CIA because he suspected that its liaison man was a "Stalinist."

There were evidences yesterday that one of several Congressional committees may at last get the colonel before it in executive session. If so, it will mark another triumph for the gremlins which always seem to delay attempts of persons to tell us how and where we are being taken to the cleaners.

The colonel has been trying to deliver his message for more than a year.

This week, according to David Barnett of North American Newspaper Alliance, the State Dept. has set up a blue-ribbon group to "re-examine" the personnel files of 175 employees listed as potential security risks eight years ago.

Among the Congressmen leading the drive to investigate Lt. Col. Goleniewski's allegations is Rep. John M. Ashbrook (R-Ohio). He urged a prompt Congressional investigation yesterday, and said he hopes the House Un-American Activities Committee will call Lt. Col. Goleniewski in as a witness.
